Newborn Procedures

Routine newborn procedures and prenatal screenings — read each, then mark your choice. Declines open your state’s official form or prepare your informed-choice document.

These are the routine screenings and treatments offered to newborns — and to you during pregnancy. Every one of them is your choice. Reviewing each and telling your care team what you decide is called "informed choice."

Official information and forms for Texas are linked on each card.

Newborn Metabolic Screening ("blood spot")

A few drops from baby's heel, usually 24–48 hours after birth. Checks for rare but serious conditions that are treatable when found early.
